- 1. Funkwerk Radeberg, at Radeberg(1): During December 1951, 42 microwave radio sets, Type 903 (Wuerzburg sets) were delivered to the Soviet Union. The Niedersedlitz(2), Rochlitz (Sternradio)(3), and the former Loewe-Werk(4) in Leipzig took part in the production of these sets. The cases, of cast iron construction, were delivered by the firm VEB-Eschebach(5) in Radeberg.
 - 2. The Radeberg and Niedersedlitz Works have recently produced 150-200 portable voice radio sets.
 - Large numbers of sets for motor vehicles (around 200-300 monthly) are being delivered to the Soviet Union. The sets were mounted in former Wehrmacht cases, delivered from Weida, in Thuringia.
 - 4. The current production of the Radeberg works also included six carrier-frequency apparatus, Type "HES", delivered to Czechoslovakia.
 - 5. About 300 field telephone sets (former Wehrmacht type) are shipped monthly to Leipzig; 75 percent are for the Soviet Union; the rest are delivered to the Volkspolizei.
 - 6. First place in 1952, production is to be given to outfits for ultra short wave installations.
 - 7. A large current commission is for the Volkspolizei airfield under construction at Merseburg. The Radeberg, Niedersedlitz and Koelleda(6) works are charged with delivering all of the radio installations.
 - 8. Niedersedlitz and Radeberg are making radio compasses after Soviet plans; also sending and receiving sets. The Koelleda works are engaged in furnishing the heavy electric installations, such as power amplifiers. Completion of the transmitter sets will take up a great part of the production. They are mostly sets of between 100 watts and one Kw. They are intended mainly for ships' equipment.

9. The Sachsenwerke are currently shipping television sets to the Soviet Union. They are outfitted with tubes from the Oberspreewerk (HF-Werk) in Berlin. They resemble recently built American tube types of the "Six" series (6 A 5, and so forth).
